Pass mayor and aldermen oppose Pecan Grove dumping

Pass Christian city leaders have added their voices to others opposing out-of-state dumping at the Pecan Grove Landfill.

At their meeting Wednesday night, the Mayor and Board of Aldermen voted unanimously to adopt a resolution that concurs with one recently passed by the Harrison County Board of Supervisors.

· The Supervisors' resolution opposes "the acceptance of outof-state garbage or trash in any landfills in Harrison County and expansion of any existing

Opposition to out-of-state dumping, particularly at Pecan Grove, mounted after New Orleans Mayor Marc Morial got City Council approval last month to begin shipping New Orleans garbage to the Pecan Grove Landfill north of Interstate 10 by Dec. 1.

New Orleans produces about 900 tons of garbage a day, and Morial said the city would pay almost $25 a ton to ship its garbage to Pecan Grove, but it was cheaper than other alternatives.

Waste Management Inc.,

owns the Pecan Grove Landfill, and has about 100 acres permitted for dumping. In total, the giant solid waste disposal firm has purchased some 1,200 acres at Pecan Grove.

HHS cheerleaders to perform at Sugar Bowl

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hancock High cheerleading squad has a problem: it has been invited to perform in the 1995 Sugar Bowl halftime show.

So, what's the problem? The squad needs close to $8,000 to participate.

Kay Lovelace, sponsor of the HHS squad, told the Hancock County School Board Monday that the team was the only one in Mississippi and one of only 15 in the nation invited to join SuperStars Universal Association, Inc., in performing the show.

"You have to be an elite squad to even be invited," she said. "That's what they're telling us with this invitation, that we are an elite squad."

However, being an elite squad means being required to be covered by Universal SuperStars Association's insurance. Loyelace said she has been told the squad must stay in New Orleans at the Marriott for the four days surrounding the Sugar Bowl in order to be covered, and that the squad must be covered by USA's insurance to participate, because of the risk involved in some of the stunts the cheerleaders will be performing.

The squad will perform not only at the football game, but also in Jackson Square and the Riverwalk in New Orleans.

Lovelace said the squad had also been invited to participate * in a national cheerleading competition in Dallas, Texas, after having placed third in a statewide competition. To make it to Dallas, the squad members had been raising money and have raised more than $3,000 so far.

When the squad received the invitation to New Orleans,

Improvements set for Pass harbor

BY ED LEPOMA Pass Christian will soon embark on a $150,000 plan to improve and repair harbor facilities. Mayor Billy McDonald and the Board of Aldermen last Wednesday night approved Harbor Commission recommendations on how to spend the city's share of Tidelands

School Board officials were invited to the meeting after

Previously, they had charged there was illegal dumping taking place at Standard after Trans-American Waste Indus-complaining that it has never tries of Mobile, Ala., took over management of the rubbish site last September

The Board of Supervisors renewed a 20-year lease for a 41-acre site at Standard for the rubbish site in 1989, with a provision in the lease that stated the School Board would be paid a fee of $3 per cubic truck load when commercial garbage is dumped.

County School Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois came to the meeting with fellow board members, Tony Caston and Cheryl Bennett. Also attending were Mike Ladner, President of the Board of Supervisors and Robert Peterson, the supervisor who represents District 1.

Les Fillingame, the Bay St. Louis city planner who serves as Chairman of the Solid Waste District, opened the meeting with a plea for a final solution to the landfill contro-

"We are at a crossroads." said Fillingame. "It is important we not move backward."

Fillingame said thousands have been spent on studies to determine that Standard was the best location for a rubbish site and landfill for Hancock County, and the permitting process took years to achieve.

He pointed out that the county is currently spending $20 a ton to take its solid waste to the Pecan Grove landfill in western Harrison County, and that two-year contract is up next March.

Help needed to identify body

BY ED LEPOMA Hancock County

Sheriff's Office is seeking help in identifying the body of a man found last Sunday in a shallow grave near Logtown Road.

Sheriff's investigator Nathan Hoda said initial medical exams show the victim to be a black male, 5 foot, 10 inches tall and about 160 to 170 pounds. He was about 40 years old. Hoda said.

A squirrel hunter stumbled on the grave last week, and all that remained of the body were the skull, some bones, and a full set of teeth, four of which were gold and two of which contained diamond stars.

Hoda said the body was in a blue shirt and cut off jeans.

Hoda said foul play is suspected, but an autopsy has not yet determined an actual cause of death.

He asked citizens who had relatives or friends missing around Oct. 29 to contact the sheriff's department at 467-

Cassidy explained that the AFT is calling on all school districts to establish student discipline codes, with input from school employees and their unions; consistently enforce those codes; establish alternative educational settings for chronically disruptive students; and establish tough academic standards and accurate assessment tools for measuring progress,

She stated, "Poll after poll has shown that parents and the public want firm and fair discipline and high academic standards for students.

"As part of the year-long campaign, the Hancock County AFT is calling on the Hancock County School District to adopt this Bill of Rights and Responsibilities for Learning, which sets out broad principles for conduct and academic achievement."

She continued, "Hancock County AFT members are fortunate to have a superintendent and school board that have had the courage to have made the tough decisions concerning higher standards for conduct and student achievement. Harbor

The Mayor said he wanted to call a meeting of dealers and fishermen to get their reaction to the proposal.

On the harbor improvements, McDonald told the Echo, "The very first thing we want to do is update the electrical system."

"It's in terrible shape, and our man who generally maintains it, was afraid to do any more piecemeal work," he said.

The Commission has appropriated $10,000 for rewiring the two main piers.

McDonald said another $40,000 will be used to redeck the two piers, and 11,000 will be spent to replace hand guard railing on East and West Breakwater.

A total $20,000 has been set aside for paying on the north side of the harbor.

"If we can't do it for that price, we might be able to get the county to help us," said McDonald, who formerly served on the Harrison County Board of Supervisors.

Another $24,000 will be allocated to install a sidewalk eight feet wide and 1,100 feet long on the north side of the harbor.

Ward 2 Alderman Maregaret Jean Kalif supported the Harbor Commission's plan to require dealers to install restroom facilities in their area of the harbor that they lease.

Kalif said her mother and others going to the nearby Yacht Club have complained about dealers and fishermen relieving themselves from the piers.

McDonald said he wasn't sure the city could require the dealers to install the restrooms, but even if they did, there would still be a policing problem.

"It's just not the dealers, it's the fishermen too," he said.

The mayor said he will ask police to step up surveillance at the harbor, and issue tickets to anyone who publicly urinates there.

In the meantime, he will invite dealers and fishermen to meet with him and discuss remedies, he said.

In other matters relating to the harbor, the mayor and Board of Aldermen approved another Commission recommendation that requires dealers to place a dumpster around their facilities by Nov. 15.

This is a good time to congratulate all of the candidates in their efforts of seeking office during the elections this year.

It is easy for many to complain about the way an elected official conducts himself or herself in a particular office, but it takes courage to place your name on a ballot for an elected position.

Not every candidate can win, but it would not be an election really if no one challenged a position. It is almost automatic that a person who has competition for a position does a better job.

So, I want to congratulate each and every candidate, the winners and those who were challengers, and I wish them all the best in the years ahead.

While on the subject of elections, I would like to remind all candidates and their supporters to please collect their political signs.

On my way to the office this morning I noticed there are several signs still up in Bay St. Louis, and I am told there are others throughout the county.

Thank you for your consideration.

Freshmen Congressmen finding it will be 'give and take'

Our leader of the freshman "Go team" in Congress, Republican U.S. Rep. Roger Wicker of Tupelo, is apparently learn-. ing that the feisty newcomers aren't going to completely change the world overnight.

The Wall Street Journal recently featured Wicker, the honorary president of the fresh-figures, amounted to $4,949 per man 50P class. The newcomers—capita in Mississippi while per swept into office last November—capita payments by Mississipproduced the first Republican majority in 40 years, riding on the wings of their "Contract With America."

The Journal article reveals that the eager, non-compromise House GOP freshmen are beginning to acknowledge that they will have to play "Let's Make a Deal" if any of their objectives for changing the political system are going to be achieved.

Wicker, the former Mississippi state Senator, told a Journal reporter: "Any of us that have been in the legislative process before know there's got to be some give and take."

Budget cutting — particularly a balanced budget in seven years — has become a virtual religious article of faith of the GOP freshmen since they arrived in Congress. Their budget cutting binge, significantly, has lately made some allowances for their own pet projects, much the way business was always done in Congress.

For example, Wicker has seen to it that the Appalachian Regional Commission, and farm subsidies, both important in his largely rural Northeast Mississippi district, were protected and he has been willing to scale back family tax cuts.

All of this suggests that the zealous freshmen are preparing themselves to give their philosophical guru, Speaker Newt Gingrich, some wiggle room in order to compromise with the Republican moderates in the Senate, to say nothing of finding accommodation with President Clinton on the budget.

But the House GOP freshmen together with their leader still make their goal of a balanced budget in seven years their irreconcilable goal. As attractive as the notion of a balanced federal budget sounds, its ramifications would create a tremendous shock upon Mississippi's economy, especially in the short term.

That is not just the view of this writer, but also the Center for Policy Research and Planning of the state College Board. When the balanced budget push began to take wings in Congress, the Research Center decided to make a detailed analysis of its impact on Mississippi, a state most reliant on federal expenditures.

To begin with, Mississippi this fiscal year, is receiving $14 billion in federal funds, while Mississippians send only $8.7 billion to Washington in taxes and other fees.

Federal spending, the research group study said on the basis of the latest available pians to the federal government (including income taxes, social security taxes, gasoline taxes and other payments) were just $2.756, the lowest in the nation. This graphically illustrates how . dependent Mississippians are on federal funds.

The argument is advanced by many balanced budget advocates that under their plan the amount of federal expenditures would continue to grow in dollar terms. However, the percentage of growth would not provide the same level of services, the state research study shows.

A balanced budget by the year 2002, the research group says, would mean about $2.8 billion less federal spending in Mississippi. That would mean $810 million less for Medicare, $560 million less for Medicaid, and $1.5 million less for education and other programs such as protecting the environment.

highways, etc. What Mississippians would have to realize is that the state would have to be willing to increase taxes to offset the reduction of $960 million which the federal government now sends to state and local governments or lose services Mississippians have come to depend upon.

This, of course, does not take into account the loss of federal funds in direct payments to individuals through such programs as Medicare, unemployment compensation, housing assistance, or in agriculture price supports.

The state Research Center calculates that by the year 2002. state taxes would have to be increased about 23 percent to compensate for the loss of the funds now paid to state and local governments.

So. while Wicker and the other gung ho young men sent to Congress last November proceed on what they consider to be a historic mission to reshape the federal government, it's not going to be like playing bean bag for "have-not" states such as Mississippi.

Coalition plan best for Medicare reform

Medicare has been very successful in ensuring that senior citizens have access to medical care. However, the program's success has come at a cost which has increased greatly over the

In Fiscal Year 1967, the Medicare Trust Fund's first full year of operation, Medicare accounted for only two percent of federal government spending. In 1995, Medicare will account for more than 11 percent of total federal spending.

Throughout its history Medicare spending has grown at faster rates than the economy, inflation and the increase in enrollment.

On Oct. 19, the House of Representatives approved a bill that would reduce projected spending in Medicare by $270 billion over the next seven years.

Members of Congress were allowed to vote on only two alternatives, the Republican plan, which passed, and the Democratic plan which saves $89 billion from Medicare.

The Coalition, a group of conservative Democrats, proposed a compromise plan which would save $170 billion form Medicare over seven years. I was outraged that the House Rules Committee did not allow the Coalition version of the Medicare plan to even come to the House floor for consideration.

I supported this plan offered by the Coalition. This version would have met our nation's need to control spending and would have protected Medicare recipients for years to come.

As a member of the Coalition, I felt the plan offered by my colleagues and me was clearly the best for our nation's seniors and fairest for all Americans. Therefore, I felt I could not support either of the two flawed plans presented by either party's leadership.

The Coalition plan would restore solvency to the Medicare Trust without the devastating cuts, without raising premiums for low to middle income seniors and without threatening rural and inner city hospitals. The Coalition plan cuts $100 billion less than the Republican plan and maintains nursing home standards and Medicare premium assistance for low income seniors.

Our plan would reduce the growth of payments to doctors, hospitals and other providers, but not at the extremely low levels of the Republican plan. The Coalition plan would allow managed care and other insurance options to beneficiars, but would not have the global budget caps in the GOP proposal. Premiums would only increase slightly under out proposal. Another important element of the Coalition plan is that it addresses the issue of military Medicare subvention. Our plan would have provided military retirees and their dependents over the age of 65 continued Medicare coverage. It would have increased the quality and availability of care for military retirees at Department of Defense facilities. This gives military retirees equal priority and access with active duty military health facilities. Without this change, it is likely that military retirees will increasingly be shut out of health care treatment at military health facilities.

Unfortunately, neither the Republican nor the Democratic Leadership's plans addressed this issue.

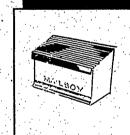

During the consideration of Medicare, the Republican Leadership used various budget gimicks to pretend that Medicare cuts had nothing to do with their tax cuts or with balancing the budget.

Congress should not be considering huge tax cuts for some while asking others to pay more. The budget deficit and the national debt must be reduced, and any sacrifices should be shared equally by all Americans.

I opposed the tax cut proposal offered by President Clinton and those from the Republican leaders of the House, because they would increase the budget deficit.

I am hopeful that as the legislative process continues the House, the Senate and the Clinton Administration will engage in a more reasonable and open debate so we can agree on reforms to make Medicare financially sound without damaging the services to beneficiaries.

Our challenge is to hold down Medicare costs without reducing the quality of care. We must either limit the rate of growth or come up with the money in taxes and premiums. It is that simple. Given that choice, I support reforms to contain the growth of Medicare spending in a fair and responsible manner.

Reader feels Republican Party needs new leaders

To the Editor:

I truly hope that last Tuesday's election will act as a wakeup call to state and local-Republicans. Outside of re-electing our governor, the party candidates did miserably (few exceptions noted).

The only Republican winners in Hancock County were Lisa Cowand, Supervisor District Three; and Terrell Randolph, Superintendent of Education.

The Republican Party officials, statewide and local, should hang their heads in

Perhaps the best place to start to reform the situation is for all the local party officials to resign so we have a chance to get some leaders who have the imagination to encourage good candidates to run and to find ways to get them elected, otherwise we are going to find the Republican Revolution of 1994 is a very short-lived affair. Somewhere deep in the heart of the once sleepy little town of Bay St. Louis, tucked in behind the majestic courthouse, and just a short walk to where the land gives way to the ocean, is the place where I've spent the majority of my days and a good part of my evenings in the last couple of years.

The history of this town and of this county are located behind the faded blue and gray

If you're lucky enough to make it past Carolyn and around the corner, you will no doubt encounter our illustrious news editor, Richard. He is certain to have a phone glued to his' ear, defending himself for his latest editorial.

From there, you'll find your-self in a sea of chaos and pregnant women. There's Bridget, the 90s version of an advertising sale: representative. She is the one who named her fish after me, an honor I shan't forget for a long time. Already eccentric at the young age of 26, she glows with life as she nails down one sale after another. There have been times when I have cringed walking by her office fearing that she will lash out at me for forgetting to do something. She is by the way, always right. She has next year's duties written very neatly on her calender, and she never misses a beat. Without Judy, you could safely say that the Echo would probably never hit the streets. To All My Friends and Supporters:

During the past three years, it has been my pleasure to serve as your State Senator from District 46. Together, we have been able to accomplish the reduction of fees on your car tags, help stop the early release of prisoners, make it mandatory that convicted felons serve at least 85% of their sentence and secure millions of dollars in funds for projects in both Hancock and Harrison Counties. I am very proud of what we have done together and I thank you for all your support and good wishes.

Please know that I will always have the best interest of our counties and state at heart and will continually look for ways to encourage growth, improvement and protection in the future.

The lease describes commercial dumping as "garbage pick-up by special contract from any business, commercial establishement or industry and carried to, and disposed of, at the site by either the contractor or private contractor."

Fillingame explained that contractors, businesses and private citizens have been dumping building debris, tree limbs and other rubbish at Standard for years, but none of it was dumped by anyone having a commercial contract to dump; therefore, no fees were charged when the county ran the rubbish site.

Since Trans-American took over, Fillingame said the firm has set up a fee system that is high enough to basically discourage any commercial dumping, he said.

Fillingame said he will draft an amendment to the current lease with the school board. which will require Trans-American to provide a quarterly report on the extent of commercial dumping at Standard.

At the end of each quarter, Trans-American would also turn over to the school board, any fees it earned from contractors who might dump at Standard, he said.

She said she has seen the site since Trans-American took over, and agreed, "It is now nicely clean.'

But, Bourgeois said, she was still concerned about long-term liability of the School Board in the event hazardous waste was dumped there in the past.

Fillingame told school board members, "It is in the vital interest of the county now to proceed with the purchase of the land at Standard,"

He said the Solid Waste District would get appraisals on the 41 acres it now leases for the rubbish site and on the 91 acres

"And, once we purchase it, ou're out of it entirely. You will have no liability,"he said. At the same time, Fillingame Fillingame said the session would explain how the site was selected, the extent of soil boring and other tests that were done to determine the site, how a landfill operates, and how it is monitored, and regulated. He said private citizens, as well as public officials, will be invited to the meeting, and he will advertise the date in local newspapers.

Caston also suggested the Solid Waste District should consider appointing someone from Standard on its board.

Coast Youth Ballet Ensemble presents 'The Nutcracker'

Ensemble will stage its 4th annual production of Tchaikovsky's Christmas classic, The Nutcracker, on Dec. 2 at 7:30 p.m. and Dec. 3 at 2:00 p.m. at Bay High Auditorium on Blue Meadow Road in Bay St. Louis. The event is co-sponsored by the Bay High Fine Arts Association, which also sponsors school performances of excerpts from the production for Bay St. Louis High School.

The Ensemble is thrilled to have as guest artists professional dancers Elizabeth McCoyd and Thom Yzaguirre performing courtesy of Nashville Ballet. The professionals will appear in the lead roles of "Sugar Plum Fairy" and "Cavalier Prince" and will also perform the "Snow Pas de Deux" in Act I.

McCoyd is in her seventh

The Coast Youth Ballet season with Nashville Ballet where she has performed lead roles in such ballets as "Cinderella", Moor's Pavane", and "Nutcracker". Previously, McCoyd danced with the Atlanta Ballet and as principal dancer with Wilkes-Barre Ballet Theatre in Pennsylvania.

> Yzaguirre is presently in his fourth season dancing with Nashville Ballet where he has performed leading roles in Balanchine's "Concerto Barocco" and "Allegro Brilliante", the prince in Act III "Sleeping Beauty", and the Snow King and Cavalier Prince in "Nutcracker". He danced previously with Louisville Ballet, Nevada Dance Theatre, and Minnesota Dance Theatre.

> This year's production dancers from the Mobile Ballet as well as some 40 local performers from all along the Coast.

The Coast Youth Ballet Ensemble, resident company of the Coast Youth Ballet Academy in Bay St. Louis, is in its sixth season. The 20-member, non-profit troupe, under the artistic direction of Sharon Loiacano, performs three to four times a year and sponsors master classes and a twoweek summer work-shop for serious Coast dancers.

Reserved seating tickets go on sale Monday, Nov. 13, and prices are $10 and $12 for adults and $6 and $8 for students. Ticket outlets: Coast Youth Ballet Academy, Anthony's Menswear, Bookends, Ellen Kane Gifts, and Jeanne Anne's Hallmark Shop in Bay St. Louis will also feature guest and Applause Dancewear on Pass Road in Gulfport. For more infor-mation call 466-2625 or 467-4601.

Junior Tigers win title for second straight year; Bay Jr. also claims city title

The Bay Jr. High Tigers claimed the Gulf Coast Conference Championship for the second year in a row by defeating Pass Christian, 30-0, on Oct. 30.

In the game against Pass Christian, all the scoring came in the first half. Scoring was done by Ronald Brown on runs of 51 and 85 yards, and Desmon Smith on runs of 23 and 30 yards. Two-point conversions came on a run by Brown, and passes from Brown to Jason McKay and Smith.

For the season, the Tigers scored 187 points for an average of 23.4 points a game.

The Tigers were 7-1. The past two seasons the Tigers have won 14 and have lost only two.

The Jr. Tigers also claimed the Hancock County Championship and City Championship by defeating Hancock (20-14 and 14-8) and St. Stanislaus (42-12 and 23-20). The City Championship was achieved by defeating St. Stanislaus twice.

Center at the John C. Stennis Space Center is offering a unique opportunity Nov. 14 for selected area teachers as an orientation training for the Operation Galileo program.

Operation Galileo is the Air Force Reserves' innovative program to enhance math and science education of high-risk students. High-risk students are those who are considered at risk to fail or drop out of school, who are disadvantaged or who are in under-represented minorities.

Operation Galileo is named for the 17th century astronomer, physicist, mathematician and teacher whose discoveries laid the foundation for modern naviation and flight. The program is being implemented by the Stennis Space Center Teacher Resource Center.

Operation Galileo allows junior high and middle school teachers, students and parents to fly in cargo and tanker aircraft during routine training missions. A selection of 10 teachers from Mississippi and South Louisiana have been chosen as applicants for the first session of the pilot project.

The morning activities of the Nov. 14 orientation training will include a tour of Keesler Air Force Base near Biloxi to demonstrate how military aviation uses math and science on a daily basis.

Teachers will visit crew work stations and avionics shops as well as participate in a preflight briefing. During the afternoon training mission flight, participants will engage in activities such as a timed exercise in which they assume crew identity and work as a team to solve a simulated flight challenge before landing.

"NASA's education office at SSC is pleased to partner with the Pentagon, U.S. Air Force and selected schools in Mississippi and Louisiana to enhance teaching and learning. These hands-on activities in science, math and aviation will provide real-time experiences for students and teachers. We are proud to be able to offer these activities for our schools," said Dr. David Powe, education programs manager for SSC.

The 10 teachers who trained in the Nov. 14 session will choose four students and one parent to participate in a mission flight during the spring of 1996. Teachers, students and parents designated as Operation Galileo flight participants during this mission will wear the distinctive light blue NASAstyle flight suit, the Operation Galileo patch and a name patch designating them as an Operation Galileo mission specialist.

Operation Galileo provides a unique, first-hand experience that links math and science to the real world of aviation technology. With its hands-on, problem solving approach, the program seeks to help students enter and succeed in an increasingly complex and technological work place.

vative opportunity for teachers

The goals are to instill an interest in math and science, to motivate students to stay in school, and to provide students with a belief that they can set and attain personal and professional goals through technical

Learning how the military uses math and science every day is the crux of the educator's understanding of how to organize their future teaching to maximize the benefit for students.

During Operation Galileo, teachers are free to develop their own curriculum modifications and can also use any of the aviation-related curriculum materials already available from a variety of sources. They return to school and begin their own program tailored to their local requirements and personal interests to acquaint students with the math and science connected to flight: terms, concepts and formulas.

"Operation Calileo is an inno-and students to apply problem-solving skills with real-world applications,' while enhancing their knowledge in the use of math, science and technology in aeronautics," said Charlotte Daves, aerospace education specialist at the NASA Teacher Resource Center at SSC.

Operation Galileo is a partnership between military and civilian communities to support GOALS 2000: Educate America Act and to promote six of the eight National Educational Goals. The program makes its official debut at two locations this year with the 403rd Airlift Wing at Keesler Air Force Base, serving as one inaugural host and the 445th Airlift Wing at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, serving as the other. Keesler Air Force Base and Stennis Space Center are the first to pilot this project. For more information about

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

After the long, lazy summer days, that little tang in the air seems to be stirring more than the leaves. Local cooks are bestirring themselves to cook up a feast or so for family and friends, judging by the recent requests for "party" dinner or supper dishes.

A classic Italian dish, with a delightful story as to its origin, is "Vitelle Tonnato" or "Tunnied Veal" — cold veal with a tuna sauce. I've never been able to find out whether the story of its origin is authentic, but I like it.

Long years ago in a monastery in Italy, so the story goes, the monks tired of their meatless meals during the long period of Lenten fare of fish, fish and more fish. One day, the story continues, one of the fish-weary monks tossed a young calf into the nearby stream, then pulled it out in a fish net, marveling loudly the while at this "wondrous creature of the sea." And, just to keep the Lenten rules, the cook masked the veal with a delicious fish sauce.

This dish is somewhat more trouble to the cook than tossing hamburgers on the grill or mixing up a casserole, but it's worth the effort once in a while at least. I have also made this dish with chicken breast or pork slices, adjusting other ingredients as needed, sometimes halving the recipe, for instance. It's a good "make-ahead" dish, as well.

VITELLO TONNATO

The recipe calls for a shoulder or leg of veal, 4 to 5 lbs. weight, boned, rolled and tied (or you might even use the veal broast) along with

- breast) along with:
 1 can flat fillets of anchovies
 2 whole cloves
- 2 medium onions
 2 carrots, pared and quartered
 2 celery ribs with leaves
- 3 or 4 sprigs of fresh parsley 2 bay leaves
- 3 cups dry white wine 6 Tblsp. lemon juice Dashes of pepper, salt as you
- 1 can tuna fish
 1 cup mayonnaise
 2 Tblsp, capers, drained

First, make several slits in the veal. Halve four of the anchovies and insert into the slits. Place the meat, along with the onions (after sticking a clove into each) as well as the other vegetables, the bay leaves and parsley, into a heavy pot. (I use my black iron Dutch oven).

Add the wine, salt and pepper, four tablespoons of the lemon juice and just enough water to cover the meat. Cover the pot and bring to a boil, then turn down the heat and simmer for just a bit short of two hours. Let the meat cool in the broth.

When the meat is quite cool, remove it from the pot, reserving the broth. Meanwhile, mash the tuna in a bowl or mortar, along with the remaining anchovies, Combine the tuna, the remaining lemon juice, mayon-naise, capers and strained broth and mix well. Be careful, anchovies are salty, so don't add too much salt.

Untie the veal, pat dry, and cut into thin slices. Arrange on a shallow platter and pour the sauce around the meat. Refrigerate overnight or a few hours longer. Serve embellished with lemon slices and parsley sprigs. Be sure to remove bay leaves, as u su al. (Serves 6 to 8 generously).

As temperatures turn cooler and hunting season gets into full swing, Mississippi's deer will be on the move. Keeping an eye out for deer crossing roads can help motorists avoid accidents.

Recent figures from the Wildlife Society Bulletin estimate that nationwide annual automobile-deer collisions total more than 1 million, with about 29,000 human injuries and 211 human fatalities.

Estimated national automobile repairs from these collisions top the billion dollar

Dr. Harry Jacobson, professor of wildlife and fisheries at Mississippi State University, said many of these accidents occur during the fall and winter months when deer are continually on the move.

This time of year there are more accidents because of the increased deer movement, Jacobson said. "As fall hits, deer begin moving to search for new sources of food to take them through the upcoming cold

Deer also stay on the move during their breeding season, which runs from about Dec. 1 through the end of February — depending on the area of the Hunting season, which lasts throughout the fall and winter months, also keeps the deer traveling.

Mississippi's deer population has reached its peak this year, with an estimated 1.75 milliondeer in the state.

"Use caution when traveling along roads or highways near wooded areas or near areas with vegetation close to the road, especially at night," he said. "Remember that no place is immune from the wondering deer, so be a defensive driver."

Jacobson also encouraged motorists to keep their eyes open — watchful of both the road and the shoulders.

When deer dash across roadways and are "caught in the headlights," their movements are unpredictable. If the worst case scenario happens, and you do hit a deer, take the same steps as for any other wreck.

Curtis Green, assistant chief of law enforcement with the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, said Mississippians should contact a law enforcement official and fill out an accident report.

"You will need to fill out an accident report for insurance purposes," Green said. "In turn, local law enforcement officials usually will contact a county conservation officer to deal with

The stealth needed for a successful hunt is an exciting part of the sport, but bringing home a prize-winning buck is not worth losing a human life. Wearing the right amount of blaze orange and handling firearms safety should be foremost in hunters' minds as they enter the woods this fall.

Over the past 11 years, 71 fatal and 238 non-fatal hunting accidents have occurred in Mississippi. All of the fatal hunting accidents from 1993 to 1994 involved deer hunters who were not wearing the required fluorescent "hunter orange."

BUSINESS NEWS

8B-THE SEA COAST ECHO-SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1995

Mississippi consumer confidence down

Mississippi's second quarter of 1995 index, covering the period of April 1995 through June 1995, was 109, a 13.5 percent drop from the level of 126 recorded for the first quarter of 1995. This was the second consecutive drop in the quarterly survey.

The most recent Mississippi Consumer Confidence survey, conducted in July 1995, indicates Mississippi consumers are less optimistic about personal finances and business conditions than they were during the first quarter of 1995.

Perhaps this is partially explained by stagnant employment growth during the second quarter of 1995 from the first quarter of 1995 and rising unemployment rates over the same period. In particular, manufacturing employment has been falling since November 1994. Overall sales growth was moderate during the second quarter of 1995 from the first quarter of 1995, growing 5.4 percent over the period.

The index level is determined by the spread between the percentage of positive answers (better or yes) and negative answers (worse and no).

Assuming positive answers outnumber negative answers, and the spread increases, then optimism is assumed to increase. However, if negative answers outnumber positive answers and the spread increased, then optimism is assumed to decrease and vice. versa if the spread decreases.

The spread decreased indicating a decreased level of optimism, for three questions. These questions asked about consumers 1) current financial situation compared to a year ago, 2) expected change in financial situation, and 3) business conditions expected during the next five years.

Supporting the index were two questions in which the spread rose. The questions asked about consumers 1) expected business conditions during the next 12 months and 2) buying conditions for large household goods.

Consumers are cautious about their personal finances and future business conditions in Mississippi. However, many believe that if a high-dollar appliance or some other major purchase is needed, now is a good time to buy.

Perhaps consumers believe 1) prices are currently low but are expected to go higher, so buy now, or 2) interest rates are pretty low, so borrow now in advance of rising interest rates for major purchases, or possibly 3) that we are currently in "good times," so why not go ahead and buy a major item if you need it.

For comparison purposes, the U.S. consumer confidence level dropped 2.8 percent during the second quarter of 1995 from the first quarter of 1995. The U.S. level of confidence fell for all but one question.

The only question which bolstered confidence asked if the consumer believed if their financial condition a year from now would be better, worse, or about the same as now. Both the U.S. and Mississippi drop in confidence over the period was broad based.

District Five's (coastal counties) confidence index was 104 for the second quarter of 1995, down 23.0 percent from the level of 135 posted for the first quarter of 1995. District Five consumers displayed decreased confidence evidenced in four of the five questions asked. The only area where confidence increased was in expected business conditions during the next 12 months.

District Five's unemployment rate stood at 6.1 percent for the second quarter of 1995. This was up from the 5.6 percent unemployment rate for the first quarter of 1995.

While the number of people looking for work increased 8.4 percent, the number of people employed decreased 1.0 percent.

Retail sales grew 4.8 percent during the second quarter of 1995 form the first quarter of 1995. While only one of 11 counties experienced a drop in retail sales, four experienced increases of double-digit rates.

"We were thrilled with the turnout for our grand opening celebration," said William H. Carpenter Jr., president and chief operating officer of Prime Retail. "Without enthusiastic shoppers, such as those we met at our grand opening, there would be no Gulfport Factory Shops. I would especially like to thank the residents of Harrison County, who have been extremely supportive of Gulf-port Factory Shops since its groundbreaking in February 1995. Now that the center is open to the public, we look forward to continuing the relationship.

Gulfport Factory Shops opened with approximately 228,000 square feet and 55 shops offering factory-direct merchandise of up to 70 percent off suggested retail prices. The outlet center's design features banana-yellow, Southern-style architecture, a children's playground, a customer service center and an enclosed food court. The outlet center will bring approximately 300 to 500 jobs to the area and millions of dollars in construction and operating contracts to local businesses. How do those TV detectives always manage to win their cases? The answer can be summed up in one word: research.

Individuals should approach investing with the same thoroughness as a TV detective. With the wide array of investments available proper research is a must before you.

Age mutual funds, for example. Today, investors can choose from nearly 5,000 different funds with a wide range of objectives, management styles and performance histories. How do you pick the one that's right for you?

Some investors rely on advertisements, ratings in financial magazines or advice-by-mail services. However, the best mutual fund research available to the average investor is offered by Morningstar or Value Line mutual fund surveys. Both of these should be available through your local library.

While the amount of information provided in these surveys may seem overwhelming, you only have to focus on a few areas.

1. What is the objective of the fund? Funds are available to meet a wide variety of objectives. What are you looking for? Growth of capital, high current income, a tax-free yield? Determine your own investment objectives, and look for funds that will invest your money to meet these goals.

2. What is the risk? Morningstar and Value Line rate risk on a scale of 1 (lowest risk) to 5 (highest risk) and provide an analysis explaining the reason for the rating. The risk ratings take into consideration such factors as the type and quality of securities in a fund's portfolio, how well-diversified the portfolio is, and much more. All of this is vital risk information, updated regularly, that you need to know.

3. What is the monthly income, and how reliable is it? An easy-to-read chart shows the annual dividends-per-share paid by each fund since 1980 (or the fund's inception if more

While objective, risk, income and dependability are immediate concerns, you also want information on the fund's management, costs and expenses. All this and more are clearly covered in these reports. They are designed to provide nothing but accurate data, including a fair analysis of each fund's strong and weak points.

Parrott attends conference

More than 50 public library directors, children's coordinators and branch librarians attended the Summer Library Program Review and Planning Session held Nov. 3 at the Mississippi Library Commission in

Plans for the 1996 Summer Library Program were presented. Theme for 1996 will be "Super Sports Summer 1996!"

Attending from the Hancock County Library System in Bay St. Louis was Janice Parrott, public services coordinator.

Record numbers of children participated in the 1995 program, with 28,932 registered and more than 400,000 items circulated. The statewide completion rate was 60 percent, with 17,371 certificates awarded.

DMR public hearing

A public hearing to receive comments on proposed changes in regulations for shrimping and crabbing will be held Tuesday, Nov. 14 at 7 p.m. at the Department of Marine Resources building, 152 Gateway Drive, Biloxi.

The proposed changes include a maximum size limit for skimmer trawls and wing nets used for shrimping and prohibiting the use of crab pots north of the CSX Railroad bridge for recreational and commercial crabbers.

Copies of the proposed changes are available at the DMR office, and written comments will be taken until 5 p.m. Nov. 17.

USM deadline approaches

Gifted students and their parents have less than a month to apply for next spring's Saturday Gifted Studies Program at the University of Southern Mississippi. Dec. 1 is the deadline to sign up for the program, which runs Jan. 13-Feb. 24. Classes are scheduled 9 a.m.-noon each Saturday. Intellectually gifted children in K-12 and/or academically gifted students in grades 9-12 may apply. Cost is $95, which includes tuition, supplies and limited accident insurance. Applications may be obtained through local school offices or by contacting USM's Center for Gifted Studies at

'City Sidewalks' brightens holiday season

When the holiday season rolls around in Memphis, the city becomes a wonderland of lights and enchantment. To bring all the events together, the Memphis Convention & Visitors Bureau established City Sidewalks, a marketing umbrella for the holiday season that includes parades, musical presentations, retail shopping promotions and much more. The promotion runs from mid-November through mid-January.

Memphis not only hosts twinkling lights, parades, and musical and theatrical performances, but the city offers comfortable accommodations in all price ranges as well.

Memphis is a great weekend get-away during the hertic holiday season. Families can experience unique events while getting all their holiday shopping done at one of Memphis' 11 malls and hundreds of retail shops. It's a holiday shoppers' paradise.

For information on the City Sidewalks promotion, call the Visitor Information Center at (901) 543-5333.

Christmas at Graceland Every year during the holi-days, Graceland is ablaze with Elvis Presley's traditional Christmas lights inside and out. Visitors can also see his holiday nativity scene displayed on the front lawn. Christmas was Elvis' favorite time of the year. His decorations will be on display from Nov. 24-Jan. 8. Call (800) 238-2000 or (901) 332-3322 for general information.

Enchanted Forest

An event lasting only 11 days from Nov. 23-Dec. 3. It's a montage of 1,100 pounds of artificial snow, 100 decorated trees, 30,000 twinkling lights, 10,000 tree ornaments, 10,000 yards of garland, 35 animated forest creatures, 8,000 cookies for decorating, and 2,500 feet of draping.

The event is put together by TWIGS (Together We Initiate Growth and Sharing) volunteer groups, and all the proceeds benefit Le Bonheur Children's Medical Center.

Starry Nights Starry Nights, a holiday display that sparkles with one million lights, is nestled among the rolling hills, towering trees and glistening waters of the world's largest urban park, Shelby Farms Plough Park. Showcased during this 1.3 mile drivethrough display are an array of images that include celebrations of Hanukkah, Christmas, Kwanzaa and the Chinese New Year.

Visitors can experience Starry Nights Nov. 22-Jan. 1. High-lights include the whimsical humor of the 12 days of Christmas, the magic of a 40-foot tall Christmas tree, the thrill of a 25-foot long Cajun crocodile, the magnificence of giant rolling balls exploding into a spray of lights, the mystery of an underwater fantasy, a 35-foot tall dinosaur, a snowman ice waltzing 160 feet across a lake, and a 70-foot long tuna jumping out of Each vehicle entering Starry Nights receives one complimentary cassette, "The Sounds of Starry Night." Admission is cash only: car $10, shuttle van (12-15 seats) $25, mini-bus (16-28 seats) $50, and bus (29 seats and up) $100. Call (901) 529-4500 for information. All proceeds benefit MIFA (Memphis Inter-Faith Association).

Zoo Lights

The Memphis Zoo will take visitors to the North Pole during its annual Zoo Lights Dec. 3-31. The animals will be asleep for the night, but the zoo will be alive with brilliant lights and warm holiday spirit. A visit to Zoo Lights includes the enchantment of two live reindeer, the nostalgia of horsedrawn wagon rides and roaring fires, the wonder of Santa Claus, a magical Santa's Express Train, a holiday trimmed farm, a bustling miniature Santa's Village, a children-only shopping center, the Cat House Cafe serving hot cocoa and treats, shopping in the Elephant's Trunk Zoo Shop, exploring the mini-museum of the Discovery Center and over one million lights in animated holiday displays.

New this year is a roundup of holiday events in the new "Once Upon A Farm" exhibit. Round dancing, clogging, caroling, pupper shows, crafts and choir performances will take place 'down on the farm.'

Admission: non-members $4 and members $3. Call (901) 276-WILD for information.
